Good day, entities! And a fine day it is in the midst of a magnificent change in reality. You, as creative gods, are heralding in momentous changes to be experienced in the coming years. You have lived and breathed the predominant thoughts flowing through the stream of consciousness for thousands of years, each thought marking its presence with a congruent flow of expression matching thought and enabling reality to take on the persona of the times.

This is still the case in these accelerating times. Energy is becoming compressed and with it, time and its function, is being altered. As you are well aware, the speeding up of time can be a tumultuous challenge as more and more is attempted to be done in what feels and appears to be less and less time. Yet, the speeding up of time does not halt its march nor have the expectations of society rendered themselves modified to accommodate the changes.

This is the challenge you face.

I, Nademus, speak to you about this now as a prelude to the countdown of time. Predictions from many sources align to the event of the era, the end of time, due in the year 2012. Now this is a much more manageable concept than it first appears, at least the way it appears from the perspective of fear. And it is the perspective of fear that many align to as they conjure the potential of these words - the end of time.

From fear, the notion of time, let alone the end of time, holds the sense of death. You look around society and remnants of the fear of death reach out to you from everywhere. You have the very vivid symbolism of your New Year, with the new coming in to replace the death of the old. You have clocks everywhere with their tick-tick a constant reminder that time is ticking away, and please note that you perceive it is ticking "away". Your businesses and society run on the notion of time – meeting times – starting and finishing work times – break times. You have schedules and compliance to time to reinforce the concept of death that, as we have discussed many times, is your greatest and most heartfelt fear.

And so you relate time and death and the meaning of the end of time takes on more ominous tones. Even if your spiritual logic dictates to you the folly of such thought, you hold cellular memory and "soulular" memory from eons of such indoctrination.

The concept of time as you associate it in these current times is one that is mechanical and contrived. The ancients related to the changing of the natural seasons as their directive to interact with their world. It was a comfortable and highly resonant manner of processing through life. Yes, bodies birthed, grew and passed. Yes, night followed day. Yes, process followed process, but without the construct of time as you know it today, the pace was natural, calm, resonant and free.

Let us return to the idea of the end of time. What if you did not view such a thought with the trepidation of a people heading for possible extinction, or simply to a reality that holds so much fear that every moment of time that passes toward that end renders individual and collective tension and anxiety?

Not everyone recognizes fear within at the thought of the end of time, but the majority of peoples in your world are so indoctrinated into fear, death and compliance with time that their ability to deal with such concepts threatens the fabric of society. You already have whole collectives of individuals awaiting the direst of circumstances and feeling quite assured of their being harvested from the lot of sinners. This inclination assumes the stature of ineffectiveness from the belief structure that supports the "why bother to do anything" approach.

But what if the end of time had nothing to do with death at all? What if the end of time was really the beginning of life lived in higher and higher consciousness? What if it was a birthing?

I ask you to consider this. As time is collapsing and speeding up, it is doing so in conjunction with vast amounts of energy emanating in and through your earth and through the peoples, flora and fauna upon and within it. This energy is filled with information that is designed to alert you to a truth that heretofore has been kept from you. This energy comes in the form of accelerated movement of the particles of life. When these accelerated particles arrive and move through human tissue, they stimulate accelerated movement of the energy fields and activate the cell structures of your body. This acceleration has been occurring at a steady but relatively gradual pace thus far and you have noticed the variations of responses and reactions of humanity. Some people handle this new energy pace with little challenge, but most are finding themselves to be agitated and edgy, feeling overwhelmed and frightened with the unfamiliar sensations within them.

When this energy moves through a body and hits the "brick wall" of an energy blockage within a body system, great distress and pain, heightened sensitivity and discomfort result. You who have been upon the path of self-discovery for many years are well aware that your fears and your misalignments to self reveal in your bodies. That is what illness is, simply a natural system out of alignment with itself, thusly creating blockages in its various parts. I might also add that the misaligned body system is mirrored by the misaligned societal system and you will find whole systems of society affected as well.

With the acceleration of energy and the collapsing of time, change is in progress. Systems must accommodate themselves to these changes or suffer the consequences of such resistance to change and choice. There will be many whose consciousness has not yet awakened to encompass the awareness of what we are speaking of here. They are the ones to whom you, who are aware, may direct your attention and focus. Be alert to the subtle and blatant request for help and assistance. You need not seek out these individuals to assist them. You assist and support their awakening by living freely and fruitfully, your own awakening. In other words, walk you talk, live your truth and remember.

Your example of living light is all that is required to support such an awakening. In fact, that is the very process that occurred to assist in your own awakening. There are those of us beyond the veil whose mission it is to spread the light and infiltrate the perceived darkness with the Light of Truth. We are diligent in that effort and our efforts are reaping the rewards of more and more of you waking up and joining in. Between those light workers beyond the veil and those of you thriving and awakening as the veil lifts, there is an army of light workers whose design is the natural return to Truth.

The Great Awakening takes on the appearance of the domino effect. When there is alignment and One begins the process, everything and everyone lined up will feel the effects. In other words, there is no stopping the process; there is no stopping the Light.

So, the end of time will reflect itself as the literal and complete collapse of time. This will render as a very powerful movement of choice. For it is choice that will allow you to survive and even thrive in the ensuing increases in energy, the speeding up of time to its eventual total collapse and the birth of a new society of mankind. Think of this coming period as a tool with which to articulate awareness. With the speed-up of time and the influx of energy comes new thought, new ideas, daring ideas that step outside the presumptions of the fear mongers and outside of the accustomed system of thought. The more flexible you can be in allowing this new thought to enter into your own individual system, or body, the more apt you will be to free yourself of the blockages that create the pain and highly charged experience of the added energy. In other words, the more aware you become, the more freely flows your energy, the more blockages that can be released through various modalities, then the easier this progression of the end of time will be on you. Then you can be the shining example of possibilities and potentialities that will enrich society to open and embrace the new and fresh outlook of mankind.

The end of time is literally the final collapse of the concept of time through the impetus of accelerated energy entering into the systems of earth. Each year until you reach the progression of years to 2012, the energy will increase and the sense of time will decrease. Make no mistake, it will require awareness to cope with these changes, make the appropriate choices and thrive in the resurrection of the wholeness of mankind.

Now, choice is a very important and valuable component of this coming change. Recall that we have spoken of the ravages of fear. Remember that fear lives and thrives in memory. So, if you are operating out of fear, then you are in reliance of memory to feed you the information from which you default your choices to repeat again. Memory supports fear through its reflection on the past, as you know it to be. I say, know it to be, to suggest that the past is not necessarily as you perceive it. In other words, though you perceive past, present and future to be linear and distinct, I suggest and offer to you that past is just an idea about reality; linear is an idea about reality; even perception is an idea about reality. With ideas about reality, ego formulates the prison of fear to lock these ideas into cellular and soulular memory and a means to default the guidance for the future, as you know it to be, to enact. So what ego performs is the dance of default.

When you make choices in the present moment, the Divine Now Moment, or the simultaneous now, you are not in reliance to memory lodged in limitation. Choices made in the Now Moment are outside of time. When you choose from the Now you are literally clearing the blockages of assumption and the blockages of fear, freeing your system to accommodate the massive changes of your reality. Choice is your tool. Use it wisely from the Now and loosen your bonds to fear, death and ego. In doing so, the light shines in to enliven and inform and you thrive.

Entities, you are profound creators to whom I have addressed many times the incredible spirit of love that you are. This love is your foundation and your template to forge a new reality, one that no longer binds you to concepts that limit and derail your own sense of self. Let your budding and awakening sense of self speak freely of its truth by remembering that you are the God and the expression of God. In God, you hold no separation but are individuated aspects of the One. This coming year in your time will bring to you opportunities to explore these truths and to experience first-hand the tremendous benefits of choice made from the Now Moment and the dismissal of reliance on rote memory as your tool of choice.

What does choice in the moment feel like? This is a powerful question because the moment of choice is one of clarity, one without doubt but with total resonance to truth. There is no second-guessing yourself and it takes no "time" to move forward. You feel ease, comfort, flow and delight as each moment is a non-moment and time is no time. Your manifestations will also begin to instantaneously develop, seemingly before your eyes. Already, at this current stage of progression, you notice how quickly you think and feel your desires and how quickly they manifest. This next year will be a period in which you can grow accustomed to such occurrences without feeling they are so extraordinary that something must be strange or wrong with you.

That is a memory trap that seduces you into fear. There is nothing wrong with you. In fact, you can do nothing wrong. All that you ever do is based on the choices you make. The choices you make are based on the belief systems that direct them. Your belief systems evolve through repetition of thought and that brings us back to what you choose to think. We have a closed loop here if you persist in relying on memory to determine your choices. But if you step out of time into the freedom of choice in the Now Moment, what you choose to think will have its basis in love rather than fear. This is true and consistent because love and fear do not co-exist in the same space.

Fear is a notion of separation and thrives through its association to ego. Ego sees everything and everyone as separate. Ego sees time as the means to implement that separateness, proffering the illusion of the passing moments in time that lead from here to there. That kind of progression suggests and models the linear perspective and its continual repetition marks the experience as real and true, despite the clues that point in the direction of simultaneous moments and no time. Ego and its cohort fear, feel they are the opposite of love. But that is impossible and a total untruth.

Love knows itself to be foundational to life. Life and Love are the basis of Oneness and are expressed through the Love of God. God is One, Life is One and Love is One. Oneness knows no separation; therefore, explains the impossibility that what ego offers could hold any semblance of truth at all. Love, being One, could not possibly see separation. That is why when we talk about the passing of time, we are talking about an idea of time.

Love knows neither time nor space. Love just is and love lives in the moment, the Now Moment. God lives in the Now Moment. When you make your choices from that Now Moment, you are exercising your godship from the Truth of who you are. When you enact who you are and allow yourself the grace of recognizing you are Love, you are God, you are One, then you step out of the recollection of fear. Remember, no matter how real it may seem, fear is an illusion known to you through the means of memory.

When you re-member yourself, your Oneness, God, speaks through you. Know that the end of time is your total and full awakening to a new reality. I offer this in profound love.

I bid you adieu. With God you are and I am. So be it. Indeed.
