

Brenda Hill

Prism Path
E 12318 Lowery rd
La Farge, WI 54639
prism-path.com
(866) 374-0243

Spiraling Movement Forward Nademus

Good day entities. And it is a day representative of love in its highest form. The nature of love holds many levels of expression from which reality poses for the snapshots of your life, as well as provides the backdrop and substance for your creative thrust. For what love is, is the premise for the very basis of your expression and existence upon this plane of demonstration.

The first Law of the Universe states that Love Exists. Without this universal statement, nothing in this realm of understanding would hold the essence or substance known as life. For love is, in a sense, a conduit of momentum through which reality attains and maintains its integrity. All That Is, that magnificent cradle of creation, the essence of God, the vessel of life, is so enamored of Itself that the experience of expression at its fullest capacity and its purest state provides for All That Is the inspiration and momentum to explore the regions of Itself with delight and abandon.

These are the qualities of creation that All That Is has endowed within each of you. As expressions and extensions of All That Is, you each hold all the love, light and beauty of pure spiritual essence with which to act as individuated particles of love in a sea of experience. The miracle of life holds both the state of being the most basic point of question upon the minds of scholars through the ages, and being the natural, moving expression of love and light within the creations and blessed beings of this universe. So, within the terms of expression, the miracle of life is both the greatest question ever contemplated and the most accepted state of being ever experienced.

Entities, you hold within you the knowledge of the universe in encapsulated form. Your bodies are the literal moving, breathing expression of God. In these bodies, you explore regions of varied interests and avenues of thoughts, each with an individualized venue, with hopes and dreams and aspirations that propel you forward on the path of love. This momentum forward is no accident. Have you ever wondered what the motivation truly is to continue forward in your life? What is the purpose of moving forward? Is moving forward what life is all about? What does moving forward accomplish in the scope of reality? How do your life and your choice affect the whole? Or do they? Why are you here? Are you supposed to be doing something? If so, are you being successful at it and how can you tell?

All of these are questions that on some level and degree, everyone asks themselves in the course of their lifetime. From the beginning of time, people have asked themselves these questions, the answers to which give them a sense of meaning and direction in their life. The questions spur the remembrance of the encoded messages within your DNA and the cellular recordings of experience, so the very act of questioning triggers the response of the appropriate answer. That question and answer process is an expression of the movement forward and it propels the momentum of life into ongoing and everlasting movement.

An interesting aspect of this question and answer process is the sometimes-surprising result of the process actually propagating itself. In other words, the act of asking surges energy in a spiraling fashion forward, upward and onward only to have you recognize that the question you just posed has had elements of itself answered before. So what occurs is that the question provides the space for expansion through the answer, only to sort of double back on itself, yet as with the spiral, a little beyond itself. It stimulates further questioning and the striving for clarity, which is the template for the forward movement of life.

So, you may ask, Nademus, are you suggesting that life is a series of questions and answers? And if we are aspects of All That Is and thereby divine by nature, wouldn't we already know everything?

To that I will offer the idea of excitement through exploration. Yes, as aspects of All That Is, you hold the essence of divinity as that expression. Excitement through exploration is my purpose for interacting. It is my joyous thrust to stimulate your knowing and remembrance of yourselves as creative Gods in the image of the love and light of All That Is, personified. It is with joy that I offer you the light, the information, the remembrance of knowledge within to propel life in its ongoing forward thrust. However, with or without the conscious knowledge that you are indeed divine by nature and creative by design, you nevertheless function as the grand designers of reality. There is not a moment lived that is not lived by design. There is not an experience that is not of your own creation. Not one, which brings me again to the idea of excitement through exploration.

As you create this wonderful and spectacular experience of life, you do so by using certain very stable and reliable tools. Imagine attempting to build a house and the only tools you had to use were rocks and sticks. Certainly you could pound in a nail with a rock and certainly you could garner some idea of measurement using the length of a stick, but these tools would not have the precision or the reliability of a hammer and ruler. Your results would flow far more easily with the use of tools designed for the job. That is the manner in which the Laws of the Universe function, with absolute precision and reliability. Their dependability is so clear and so exact that you have no need to question their accuracy or reliability. They are so basic to the nature of your existence that they become, in a sense, background basics, so natural as to become for you, relatively invisible in nature. You use them constantly and consistently and with such ease and proficiency that you forget that you are using them.

That is where I, and others like me, come in. We are here to help you remember the tools you are using and help you remember the operational instructions for these tools. There are several Laws of the Universe, which applicably guide your reality. The first and most basic is that Love Exists. As stated earlier, it is through this law that you exist at all. Another vital law is that Thought Creates. Your life experience is created through the active formulation and choice of thought energized by energy in motion, or emotion. This emotion, by the way, is neutral until you define it by your beliefs and attitudes. The Law of Manifestation functions as the process of vibrational resonance acting as the means to solidify thought into experience. This is done utilizing the Law of Attraction which states that which is liken unto itself is drawn, and through the Law of Allowance which through its receptivity, opens your vessel to receive and, without hindrance and resistance, blend in concert with your state of divine resonance and let your self flow in the spiral of forward moving life.

Now all this is a choice, a spectacular tool of creativity to literally excite the particles of your being, which are part and parcel with All That Is, in the dream of exploring new and varied regions of Itself and the multi-faceted interconnections with Itself and all life. Exploration holds the key to the drive for forward movement, and the key itself holds a question. That is the exciting aspect of life. Questions spur answers and if the answers are clear enough, they spur further questions. That is not a mistaken sentence. Indeed, I will repeat it again. If the answers are clear enough, they will spur further questions.

An interesting emotional effect occurs in this powerful spiral. The idea of satisfaction from an ego state of mind holds the reward with a final, full and complete answer. Ego wants to get to the end of the question. Ego feels most comfortable feeling in charge of the duration of the answer. In other words, ego thinks it can encapsulate the question in black and white answers. What the God in you knows, instinctively and inherently, is that the answers to the greatest questions trigger the forward propulsion of life. And the forward propulsion of life is about the divinity of All That Is, consequently you, in the spiraling movement forward of love expressed.

It is my greatest desire that this has triggered more questions within you. You are each profoundly loved and adored. I bid you adieu. With God you are and I am. So be it. Indeed.

□ 2003 by Brenda Hill